

PREVENT

PREVENT is one of the four elements of the government's counter-terrorism strategy, CONTEST. It aims to stop people becoming terrorists or supporting terrorism

The PREVENT strategy responds to the ideological challenge we face from all forms of terrorism and aspects of extremism, provides practical help to prevent people being drawn into terrorism and works with a wide range of sectors, including education, where there are risks of radicalisation.

Queen Emma's School does not support terrorism and will not tolerate any activity which could lead to the radicalisation of others. Staff and governors will work together through our safeguarding policy and procedures to support those most at risk.

We will also build students' resilience to radicalisation and empower them to challenge extremist views by promoting fundamental British values through the Personal Development curriculum and assemblies.

All staff at Queen Emma's School have a duty to safeguard and promote the health and wellbeing of all children and young people with whom they have contact in the course of their duties. This includes identifying and protecting children who may be at risk of radicalisation and being drawn into terrorism.

Queen Emma's School have designated safeguarding leads who has completed PREVENT training. The school will ensure that the PREVENT duty is included in staff safeguarding training in order that they remain alert to changes in students' behaviour which could indicate that they need help and protection. If a member of staff is concerned about a student, it is their duty to follow our safeguarding procedures.

As with other online risks of harm, we will be alert to any risks posed by the online activity of extremist groups and we will continue to educate our students about staying safe online in and out of school.

If you have any concerns about potential radicalisation, please contact the Designated Safeguarding Lead at school.
